Introduction

A Delta Gamma house director is many faces to many people. The house director is a property manager and also creates a “home away from home” environment for the members. In short, the house director plays a vital role in creating and maintaining the physical and social environment in which the chapter operates. A successful house director enjoys young people, understands the challenges they face and has strong property management skills.

This handbook is designed to help the house director feel comfortable in their role. Each chapter is unique, and each house director will fulfill a unique role within the chapter. Relationships and duties will vary from one university to another and from one chapter to another. A house director must ensure that those with whom they interact/work with have a clear understanding of the role they play. Though the house director is not an officer or member of the advisory team or house corporation board, they fit into the organizational structure of the chapter by virtue of their role as a house director. The house director is hired and employed by the house corporation employment committee or assistant director for managed properties at the Office of Housing (OOH).

The house director should review and sign the job description acknowledging understanding of their job duties. Please refer to the official job description from the Office of Housing.

Performance Evaluation

An annual performance evaluation is conducted to provide you with the opportunity to discuss your job duties, goals and objectives and accomplishments, identify improvement and development needs and plans to address them. Input from the key people you interact with on a regular basis is requested, which includes, the house corporation/assistant director for managed properties, advisory team chair (ATC), chapter president, director of house management and the Office of Housing.

If you supervise housekeeping, chefs/cooks and/or maintenance employees (on payroll) you will complete a performance evaluation for those employees.

Mandatory Training

Delta Gamma requires all house directors who have been employed for at least one year to complete the Mental Health First Aid Certification (MHFA) training. This training is not intended for you to be a mental health counselor, but rather it gives you tips on dealing with mental health issues the collegians may be dealing with. The training is instructor-led and to receive the certification you either need to attend the training via Zoom or in-person. The training is also five hours and includes two hours of pre-course work. Feedback from house directors who have received the training has been very positive and well worth it. The certification is another “tool in your toolbox!” As a reminder, the Mental Health First Aid Certification training is a condition of your employment agreement.

Other annual mandatory trainings include the annual house director conference and safety and state-specific trainings on topics like mandatory reporting and sexual harassment.

Helpful Information

The following information should be kept in the house director’s notebook to assist with performing job duties effectively and efficiently.

If you cannot readily locate this information, contact your employment committee chair/assistant director for managed properties to help you retrieve the information:*

- A roster of the advisory team with contact information.
- A roster of the house corporation board members/assistant director for managed properties and the Office of Housing staff contact information.
- A roster of the regional team.

- A list of chapter leadership and their contact information.
- A list of chapter members living in the house and their room number.

- An inventory of the kitchen equipment, supplies, linen and table settings.
- Records relating to keys, locks or codes necessary for the security of the house.
- A list of the names and phone numbers of the other house directors on your campus.

Insurance

The insurance policy carried out by the house corporation/executive offices provides workers' compensation and liability insurance for all employees of the house corporation. Most worker's compensation policies are through MJ Insurance, but some states are monopolistic and require insurance through the state pool. In terms of personal property insurance, only house directors have access to $15,000 coverage with a $500 deductible. If that amount is not adequate for a house director's belongings, additional coverage would need to be purchased by the house director.

Working with the Chapter Officers

The house director should understand the responsibilities of various members of the advisory team and know who to contact concerning specific matters. In many cases, specific advisers will need to consult the house director to perform their duties. The advisory team members may ask the house director to be available to them when advice is needed in the area of house management. In addition, the advisory team will expect the house director to inform them of any disturbing or unusual trends or problems within the chapter. They will work together to see that such conditions are corrected if such action is needed.

chapter president

Together, the house director and chapter president set the pace and tone for the chapter through consistent, regular communication. The president and director of house management need to keep the house director up to date on the events of the chapter and any changes in the chapter calendar. The house director should work with the president to:

- Report any problems within the chapter that require Honor Board action, including major infractions or repeated infractions of university regulations, the Fraternity Constitution, Delta Gamma policies and procedures, the chapter house rules, as well as federal, state, provincial and civil laws via a written report; if at all possible, please document the policy violation with a photograph.
- Working with the director of house management, see that arrangements are made for Collegiate Development Consultants (CDC) or any visiting Fraternity officers.

vice president: social standards

In the president's absence, the house director is expected to report to the vice president: social standards any problems within the chapter that require Honor Board action.

vice president: finance

The house director and the vice president: finance must work together to:

- Ensure that the chapter budget allowance for food and supplies is satisfactory.
- Approve household bills for payment by either the vice president: finance or the house corporation/assistant director for managed properties.
- Ensure bills are promptly paid to vendors.
- Submit all receipts when utilizing the chapter credit card.
- Ensure collections are made promptly for guests eating in the chapter house if such charges are applicable or appropriate according to the chapter bylaws and standing rules.

director of house management

The house director and the director of house management should always work closely together because their jobs are closely aligned, and they share many responsibilities. The director of house management and chapter president should keep the house director up to date on the events of the chapter and any changes in the calendar. The house director and the director of house management should:

- Maintain communication between the house director and the chapter. It is highly recommended that a weekly or bi-weekly meeting be held to review upcoming events or any concerns.
- Ensure that the chapter house and grounds are in acceptable condition at all times.
- Work together to arrange necessary repairs. The director of house management should report any necessary repairs to the house director, who should obtain the approval of the house corporation/assistant director for managed properties for the repairs.
- Collaborate on checking the security of the house and changing the door codes or locks.
- Collaborate/coordinate the bi-annual fire drills. Check with the director of house management to ensure there is a written plan for drills and a debrief.

director of social events

Because the director of social events is responsible for providing a framework of social experiences for the chapter, they will work closely with the house director whenever an event is planned that involves a change in the normal functioning of the chapter house.

When the chapter is planning an event at the chapter house, the director of social events and the house director should review:

- The number of guests for meals, and any special changes to the menu.
- The table or room decorations, which may present a change in meal service.

When the chapter will be entertaining individual guests, the director of social events and the house director will:

- See that the guests are greeted and made to feel welcome and comfortable in the house.
- Make arrangements for special seating in the dining room.

vice president: membership

Since recruitment traditions and regulations vary greatly from one campus to another, the vice president: membership and the house director should meet to discuss needs or changes in regular routine during both primary recruitment and Continuous Open Bidding (COB).

Discussion should focus on:

- The house director's role and hostess duties during recruitment or COB.
- Food or drink requirements during recruitment and their budget allocations.
- Schedule of meals for chapter members during work week and recruitment.
- Clean-up assignments by chapter members.
- Number of prospective new members at regular meals during COB.

chapter members

The house director's relationship with the chapter members is one of great importance. In establishing a good relationship with chapter members, the house director is asked to:

- Act as the chapter's official hostess.
- Understand university, Fraternity and chapter rules and regulations, and guide chapter members in observance of them.
- Help foster harmonious relationships among the chapter, the university, the Fraternity, the advisory board, the house corporation board, and alumnae.
- Give advice on proper etiquette.
- Understand and respect the many commitments and interests demanding the members' time and energy.
- Be a willing listener.
- Be informed of campus life and the community you live in.

advisory team

Each Delta Gamma chapter is served by alumnae members on an advisory team. The number of women on the team will vary from chapter to chapter, but normally four to eight alumnae will serve. The advisory team advises, counsels and guides; it does not govern the chapter or the chapter officers, and it does not determine nor dictate chapter rules and bylaws. Your primary contact on the advisory team is the chapter's advisory team chair (ATC).

Certain authorities are granted to the advisory team, including the authority to:

- Require the chapter to observe Fraternity policies and procedures, house rules, university rules and college Panhellenic rules.
- See that the chapter maintains cooperation with the university administration, Panhellenic groups, alumnae, the house corporation/assistant director for managed properties, the house director and other employees.

Local Alumnae

The alumnae chapter or association in the community may occasionally hold meetings or events at the chapter house. The president of the local alumnae group should obtain permission from the house corporation/assistant director for managed properties. The local alumnae president must coordinate with the house director, house corporation president/assistant director for managed properties and the chapter president to decide on dates that are available and convenient for all parties concerned. The house director may be requested to take charge of certain aspects of such alumnae functions.

From time to time, visiting alumnae may drop by and want to see the house. The house director, in their role as hostess, should coordinate and escort alumnae who are touring the house.

Campus and Community

Delta Gamma chapters operate within the official framework of the campus where they are located. The chapter members are also members of the greater community and have a responsibility to be good citizens and good neighbors. The house director should:

- Understand university policies that apply to Greek housing and chapter members.
- Maintaining cordial relationships within the campus community.
- Be involved in campus and community activities.
- Know campus officials and campus safety officers and local law enforcement.
- Form relationships with other house directors and attend house directors' meetings, if such meetings take place on campus.

House Corporation

The house corporation is a separate legal entity established in the state/province in which it resides to provide a suitable social environment for the chapter. The house corporation is the employer of the house director and other employees, whom the house corporation employment committee, per Delta Gamma policy, manages.

- If provided by the house corporation, a Delta Gamma credit card may be provided to pay for minor purchases needed for the house; the house director must provide receipts for any goods paid for with the credit card. Delta Gamma credit cards are only to be used for purchases that are the house corporation’s responsibility and they should not be used for chapter items.
- Upload receipts to Smartdata for any charges at local stores related to purchases made on behalf of the house corporation.
- Notify the house corporation board of fire drills and any requirements/suggestions made by the fire inspector concerning chapter safety and fire prevention.
- Immediately notify the house corporation if there is damage to the house.

LLCs

LLCs do not have a local house corporations and are managed by the Fraternity. The assistant director for managed properties is responsible for managing the LLCs. The assistant director for managed properties manages the house director and all other employees of the LLC.

Ask the house corporation treasurer/assistant director for managed properties for the process of submitting invoices over your approval limit.

Delta Gamma Risk Management

Safety, Security and Health

Each Delta Gamma chapter has an emergency action plan developed by the house director and the director of house management, with the assistance of the advisory team, the house corporation board/assistant director for managed properties, Fraternity policy and the local fire marshal.

In the case of an emergency involving a chapter member, the chapter has specific policies and procedures to follow, so let the chapter officers take the lead. The chapter president is in charge and must be contacted. The house director should not contact parents. Medical or police personnel will inform parents as necessary. Do not allow accident victims to be disturbed by untrained persons. Do not attend to accident victims yourself.

Emergencies

- Instruct all members that only the chapter president (or, if they are not available, the next ranking officer) should speak for the chapter, and only after receiving guidance from the advisory team chair and/or the Regional Collegiate Specialist.
- If a crisis has occurred within your chapter facility, close the facility to all non-Delta Gammas except for emergency personnel. In case of any emergency, contact a member of the regional team or Executive Offices at crisis@deltagamma.org.

Fire Drill Procedures

Some universities/colleges may require their process for Greek houses. But the house director should be present during the fire drill. Two fire drills annually are required in all Delta Gamma chapter houses: one to be held in the fall and the second in the spring. Fire drills should be conducted within 10 days from the beginning of classes, with one of them after sunset or before sunrise. The first one of the academic year is to be under the direction of the local fire chief or their representatives and should include instruction in the use of fire extinguisher equipment. The house director should partner with the director of house management to execute the fire drills. Always follow the procedures of a drill as though it is an actual event.

- Pay attention and respond quickly to the alarm.
- Ensure all members know drill procedures and follow them.
- Do not retrieve any personal items not in the immediate area.
- Be sure the lights are out, and doors are closed.
- Evacuate the building via the nearest usable exit.
- Outside the building, go to the designated assembly area(s).
- Have a procedure in place to take roll or determine that all members living in the house are accounted for.
- Complete the fire drill form and submit it to your human resources business partner.

Weather-Related Procedures (Flood, Hurricane, Tornado)

- Pay attention and respond quickly to the alarm.
- Do not retrieve any personal items not in the immediate area.
- Listen to local civil defense officials or the National Weather Service.
- Ensure all members know the procedures and follow them.
- If asked to leave your area, be sure the lights are out, and doors are closed.
- Take shelter in an approved area.
- Do not go outside the approved shelter(s).
- Have a procedure in place to take roll or determine that all members living in the house are accounted for.

The house director should have a list of emergency phone numbers with them at all times during these procedures.

Power Failures

Occasional power failures are quite common. Unless the chapter house is prepared for such events, a power failure can be disorienting, causing other accidents or security problems, and affect the overall safety of the chapter. The house director and the director of house management should be familiar with the location of fuse boxes, circuit breakers and the necessary technicians or local utility company to be called for such an emergency.

In the case of a long-term power outage, the advisory team chair and/or the chapter operations adviser and the house corporation president/assistant director for managed properties should be notified to make arrangements to house the chapter women in another location. A sufficient supply of flashlights and batteries is essential.

First Aid

Regardless of the extent of safety precautions, accidents do happen. For this reason, the house director should be familiar with basic first aid treatment procedures. If suggested by the house corporation/assistant director for managed properties, Red Cross first aid training, CPR directions and instruction for the Heimlich maneuver can be arranged locally.

If an employee is injured on the job, determine if they need immediate medical attention. If required, send them to the nearest urgent care/hospital and inform them that the injury is covered under workers' compensation. The employee is required to complete a first report of injury form even if it is a minor injury. The completed first report of injury form is emailed to our contact at MJ Insurance (or through the state pool) and your assigned human resources business partner. Injuries on the way to or from work are not covered.

Narcan and Automated External Defibrillator (AED)

Delta Gamma will follow university guidelines for Narcan and AED training for Greek houses. Some universities require chapter management to be trained and will provide Narcan for Greek houses and may also offer training for house directors. While this is optional, Delta Gamma house directors are instructed to call 911. This also applies to the use of an AED.

Active Shooter

If there is an active shooter situation on campus, the house director should work with the chapter president and director of house management to ensure all doors are locked, blinds are closed, lights are off, shelter in place and follow any university instructions.

Mandatory Reporter

Delta Gamma follows state-specific guidelines for mandatory reporting. For example, Washington and Ohio state laws require house directors to be mandatory reports.

A mandatory reporter is required to notify the university and law enforcement if hazing or other criminal acts are witnessed or reported to them. If the hazing involves Delta Gamma members, the house director should immediately report the incident to crisis@deltagamma.org. Hazing is defined as any act committed as part of a person's recruitment, initiation, pledging, admission into, or affiliation with a student organization, athletic team, or living group or any pastime or amusement engaged in with respect to such an organization, athletic team, or living group that causes, or is likely to cause, bodily danger or physical harm, or serious psychological or emotional harm, to any student or other person attending a public or private institution of higher education or other postsecondary educational institution in this state, including causing, directing or coercing or forcing a person to consume any food, liquid, alcohol, drug or other substance which subjects the person to risk of such harm, regardless of the person's willingness to participate. "Hazing" does not include customary athletic events or other similar contests or competitions.

Delta Gamma will provide state-specific training on mandatory reporting by your human resources business partner when needed. If the university is asking you to become a mandatory reporter, please contact your human resources business partner for more information.

Outside Security Threats

Outside security threats include, but are not limited to, stalking and social media threats. House directors will contact their house corporation/assistant director for managed properties, who will be working in collaboration with the Executive Office crisis management team and the regional team. Additional security at the chapter house may need to be executed during this time. The house director should immediately reach out to crisis@deltagamma.org.

Security

Delta Gamma policy dictates that all housing will be locked 24 hours a day. The house director, along with the director of house management, is responsible for ensuring that this policy is enforced. The locks on all doors and windows should be kept in good working order.

Safety standards establish a basis for acceptable action on the part of live-in collegiate members and employees. The house director should see that all repair technicians provide quality work, are reliable and bonded. They should also be supervised by the house director while working in the private areas of the house. They should not be allowed to prop doors or windows open.

The house director should walk through the house each night before retiring to see that the house is locked and secured. The house director should make sure that the house corporation president/assistant director for managed properties always has the current door code and/or current keys. This is especially important when the house is closed, and the house director is not present.

The director of house management, the house director and the house corporation/assistant director for managed properties should have a plan in place for securing the house during school breaks and the summer. The house corporation/assistant director for managed properties should have keys to the house and all security codes. Collegiate codes should be disabled during breaks. During breaks, if the house director will be on vacation, codes/access for vendors should also be disabled.

Eating Disorders and Alcohol or Drug Abuse

If you suspect an eating disorder or another personal issue such as alcohol or drug abuse:

Do not discuss your concerns with the individual.

Do not diagnose this woman.

Do not discuss your concerns with their parents or their friends in the chapter.

Do not use the word "sickness."

Do go to the chapter president or the vice president: social standards. Tell them your concerns, and they will manage it from there. Please remember that Honor Board is confidential, so you will not be informed of their actions.

Most campuses have a health center that provides information related to these concerns and many more.

If you feel that the chapter has not addressed the problem, your next step is to express your concerns to the advisory team chair. Again, you may not be informed of their actions or the outcome, but you are doing your part to address the concern.

The house director does not serve as a disciplinary agent within the house. When the house director becomes aware of violations of university, Fraternity or chapter rules, they should report such violations to the chapter president, vp: social standards or advisory team chair. Any similar situations with the staff should be relayed to the house corporation/assistant director for managed properties and human resources business partner.

Putting it All Together

Communication and decision-making are the “glue” in the management of the chapter house. Good decisions and communication lead to a feeling of trust, respect and teamwork among employees and members. This synergy will instill high levels of energy and enthusiasm critical to effective management.

Periodic meetings with the director of house management, chapter president, advisory team chair and/or chapter operations adviser will often eliminate potential problem areas and complaints. The house director should feel free to request a meeting as needed to discuss problems or define chapter needs which fall within their job description.
