

Mock Trial Frequently Asked Questions

What is Mock Trial?

Mock Trial is a values-based approach to risk-management and liability education for collegians. The program includes a Mock Trial that mirrors a typical court proceeding and discussion of values and bystander behavior led by a Delta Gamma Fraternity attorney volunteer. Participants will identify risky behaviors such as substance abuse, academic dishonesty, hazing, harassment, personal safety concerns and other issues that are specific to your chapter and campus environment which will frame the trial .

How do I bring Mock Trial to my chapter?

Ideally, you should submit your Mock Trial Request Form 4-6 weeks prior to your preferred date. It can found in the Delta Gamma Library Based on the provided dates and times in your Mock Trial Request Form and the facilitators schedules, Delta Gamma Fraternity will set a date and time for this program to be brought to your chapter. Once the date is set it must be placed on your e-Ops calendar.

What is the cost/expense for my chapter?

If you are receiving this program as a condition of your chapter status, your chapter will be responsible for covering the travel expenses of the facilitator. In all other circumstances, the travel expenses of the facilitator will be covered by a gift from the Delta Gamma Foundation. Your chapter is expected to host the facilitator and provide lodging, if applicable.

Who should attend Mock Trial?

Delta Gamma's goal is to present Mock Trial to your entire membership. This program should be considered an Anchored Event. When scheduling, consider when your entire membership is available. Hosting Mock Trial in place of your regularly scheduled chapter meeting or during a chapter retreat can often garner the most attendance. We also ask that you consider inviting your chapter advisers.

Where will Mock Trial take place and will I need any equipment?

Mock Trial can take place in any venue that can comfortably accommodate your entire chapter. No AV equipment is needed.

What happens if we need to cancel this event?

Should you have to cancel Mock Trial at any time, your chapter will be responsible for all expenses incurred up to the date of cancellation.
